Redskin 'Pebbles' Pick Up Shine

A river is a symbol for life, constantly flowing and changing its course. Redskin life mimics the St. Joseph River across the street. It picks up sediment and pebbles from everywhere and lets them fall wherever they may want to fall, allowing them to build and grow on their own. Former Lakesiders and Franklinites enter the mainstream of life under the Dome, adding their personalities and concerns to that special Redskin mix.

These pebbles are constantly buffeted by the strong current and undertow. Larger rocks beat on them, logs and debris smash them about.

As we compare life to a river, so can we compare ourselves to the pebbles and rocks. Some will sink below the bottom of the river, never to be seen again; others will stand up under the beating and emerge shining and smooth; some will keep a few rough edges but will add to the beauty of the river by just being there.

A river has a certain course to run. It has been mapped out by nature and alters its path only when man steps in and builds dams and other obstacles. North Side is a river, our life for four years. It changes with time, it restricts us, it encourages us to grow. Our teachers serve as the buffeting rocks and waves, setting the rules and boundaries. Such limits keep the tide running smoothly so that the water doesn't become a destructive force. Typically, rules are hard to bear at times, but the benefits will appear downriver, where we will know how to deal with limits placed upon us.

Unlike pebbles, we can choose to emerge from the river shining and smooth or to sink to the bottom, never to add to the beauty of life.

As we decide our futures, we can jump in to risk the pounding or sit idly and watch the river flow.

Rushing, Sharing Spark Dome Life

Life wasn't just something studied in a biology class. It was what each individual breathed into the halls of North Side.

During school hours, bells filled halls that resounded with laughter and the latest gossip shared among friends. We rushed to a favorite meeting place — a stairwell or classroom door — or gathered around auditorium doors to make plans with friends. Cafeteria time hustled us in to toss books on a table that was near a favorite guy or girl. Some students scurried to finish homework while others explained the details of a new romance.

After school band members poured onto the practice field for two hours of work. The football field filled with deep, rhythmic shouts of athletes doing calisthenics. Inside the Dome students pondered over make-up tests or helped a favorite teacher. At night stadiums or gyms bulged with students turned sports fans cheering their Redskins — win or lose.

As students we carried stacks of books; as Redskins we carried stacks of experience and memories with friends.

"Is that really me?" exclaimed junior Ryan Day as he examines his student I.D. picture for the first time.

During Spirit Week, Kellie Turner and Nan Didier displayed their spirit by cheering at the Junior-Senior Women's Football game.

Fashion Follows Activity, Interest

Fads and fashions demonstrated that students enjoyed activities and clothes which challenged their imaginations.

It wasn't strange to hear people talking of the newest in fads, the Rubik cube. Redskins developed interesting, creative ways to solve the cube. Eric Beltran, a junior said, "I threw mine away, in several little pieces." Sophomore Joel Brecount said, "I took all the colored stickers off and put them in their right places."

North Siders liked these brain teasers, but consider them extremely frustrating. Computer games became more popular with the invention of Pac-man.

Fashions also challenged the Redskin mind with the alligator going out and the polo coming in. College sweatshirt, whales, knickers, khakis and monogrammed sweaters caught the Redskin eye.

Attitudes about the preppy look frequently led to comments such as "save the alligator, eat a preppy".

Those who aspired to be "preppy" considered Top-siders, Izods, and Calvin Kleins to be a must in their wardrobe.

A variety of gym shoes, from Nike to Etonic to Puma, appeared on North Siders' feet.

Many games were played during the year, but one, Rubik's Cube, boggled many minds for a solution.

Dan Renninger shows up in a typical outfit, Izods and Nikes.

A computerized game, known as Pac-Man, offered many enjoyable moments of computer fun for all.

Rainbows Sprout For Homecoming

After two weeks of school, one thing was on everyone's mind: Spirit Week.

Freshmen didn't quite know what all the excitement was about, but others told them what Homecoming stood for. It was shining your shoes and putting on your Sunday-best for Dress-Up Day. On 60's Day, you greased back your hair or put on a mini-skirt.

Midweek activities kept Redskins spirits high with Rainbow Day. To characterize the Homecoming theme of the Rainbow Connection, students wore sweaters with rainbows printed on them. One girl even went so far as to paint each fingernail a different color.

That evening, the juniors crushed the seniors 20 to 6 in the women's football game. Homecoming king Tom Hattery and his court were introduced at halftime.

Condemned to Punk Day, North Siders painted their hair purple and wore trash bags, but they recovered for Red and White Day. There they wore the traditional colors to raise spirits for the football game.

In a real cliff-hanger, the Redskins, sneaked by the Trojans 14 to 13. Nan Didier had been crowned Homecoming queen at halftime.

The excitement, participation, and rowdiness during Spirit Week proved, without a doubt, that "Red ain't dead."

Senior Women's football Players Roberta Cornett and Rita Sarrazin run on to the field with high hopes, only to be disappointed when the seniors lost 20-6.

Homecoming Queen Nan Didier leads the procession of the court in a Chevy convertible.

Applause rises from the stands as King Tom Hattery presents himself to the crowd.

Marvin Billingsley battles two Elmhurst players for possession of the ball.

A new attraction at North, the "Cowskins," appeared at the first pep session of the year.

Juniors Debbie Cook and Stephanie Long show their spirit by dressing up for "Punk Day."

The burning of the bonfire is a great time before the Homecoming game to get "fired up."

Friend: Someone Who Helps You

"A friend is someone who knows all about you and still likes you," said junior Chris Lehmen. Other Redskins defined a friend as someone with whom they could be both crazy and serious, someone with whom they could do fun things and go places.

As long as the money held out, they wandered the shopping malls, skated, drove around, attended sporting events, ate at the nearest pizza place or fast food restaurant, or went to movies.

Once the money ran out and when parents couldn't be talked out of the car, friends had parties, walked, played frisbee in the park, went to church and church-related activities, studied at the library, worked, spent a quiet evening at home watching television, or just talked and laughed.

At school, friends walked in the halls, talked at lockers, ate lunch together, sat nearby in classrooms, and yelled to each other as they rushed off late to class.

Some played together on teams, in one of the bands or choirs, or in one of the clubs. If they didn't participate they came together to dances, concerts or plays.

Not uncommon was the sight of students and faculty talking, laughing, and having a generally good time: Miss Patricia La Fontaine and the majority of her students; Mrs. Claryn Myers and the Thespians; Mr. Jon Bill and the kids in the auto club; Mr. Ed King, Mr. Larry Kenner, or Dr. John Hill working with the kids in bands and choirs.

Redskins looked for friends who provided honesty and trust. They wanted someone with whom they could seriously talk about all their problems, whether they were romance, school, or parent-related. Teenagers needed someone who would try to understand them, try to help when they could, or at least lend a sympathetic ear and a shoulder to cry upon. As one student put it, "A friend is someone who loves you, no matter what."

Redskins often said they had enough friends, but a majority said they'd like to have more. Senior Mike Chandler summed it up with, "You can never have too many friends!"

No, it's not a chorus line from a Broadway Show. It's enthusiastic juniors displaying their spirit.

Redskins Bloom In Hobby Field

More than 1600 students enjoy almost as many activities or hobbies. While some may attend practice for a sport such as football, volleyball, or track, others go off to their jobs or go home to study or complete homework. Special interests, however, occupy a good number of Redskins.

Sophomore Tim Didier considers his special interest to be very exciting, challenging, and at times, hazardous. Tim is an active BMX (Bicycle Moto Cross) racer. He competes in many local and national racing events and was recently on a winning streak.

Senior Nan Didier, a talented gymnast, teaches gymnastics at the YWCA. She likes her job because she enjoys working with younger people.

Senior Julie Kyle, in her spare time, liked to shop, listen to music, and play tennis; and when she was not enjoying those activities, she babysat 30 to 45 hours a week.

Sophomores Ryan Hartzog and Jeff Howard spent their time at marching band practice after school and on weekends.

Diversity in hobbies and activities holds Redskins together.

A big smile is only a part of Jill Hartman's task in poms.

Sue Webb, the lonely runner, sprints across an open field.

Mr. King shows the marching band how it is done.

Senior Terry Lovejoy displays his talents in marching band.

Dog Day Brings Cash for Seniors

"Make sure to get his toes clean!"
"Be gentle around the ears."
"His bark is bad — but his bite is worse — be careful!"
"You may need a ladder for Marmaduke!"

"I brought Fifi's favorite shampoo — her bow goes right on top, please."

"Do you charge extra for a trim?"

"Who brought that darn cat?"

This "first" was the idea of Senior Class President, Natalie Parrish. Natalie wanted something different for a fundraiser for her class, and she found just the right thing.

The "dog wash" went into gear September 12 in the parking lot at North Anthony Rogers Market.

It proved to be entertaining for everyone who helped, as well as boosting the class treasury by $45.

Fort Wayne had not been ready for an annual "dog wash," but Redskins have hit upon a novel idea!

Now what about our cats?

"Ooh, this water is cold and I want to leave!" exclaims this little puppy, who would rather be home.

Senior Rod Lauer dries off one of the many dogs that were brought to the Dog Wash.

Fred Caesar's dog Rachel was the mascot of the Senior Day Dog Wash.

Senior Mike Hollander helps wash one of Jane Grandos's dogs. Later, it got away and started a panic.

Seniors Fred Caesar and Brenda Sauders take a break from the dog wash, only to be hit with a bucket of water.

Explosions Rock Fall Production

The curtains open on Penelope Sycamore, who is busily typing a novel just because a typewriter was delivered to her by mistake eight years earlier, and on Essie, prancing around the stage on tiptoes. If this sounds strange to you, "you ain't seen nothin' yet!" As the plot develops the audience views Martin Vanderhof, who quit working 35 years ago and has never paid a cent for income tax; Ed, whose annual income was $28.50 and who distributes his wife's candies and includes his printed brochures with messages like "Blow up the White House"; Boris Kolenkhov, who defected from Russia and is now giving dance lessons; Paul Sycamore, who has a fireworks factory in his basement; and many others just as zany!

Written by Moss Hart and George Kaufman, this wacky story of the Sycamore family tells of their love and enjoyment of life and how they teach one stuffy businessman with indigestion to relax and take life easy.

The cast and crew worked long and hard hours to get this production of "You Can't Take It With You" off the ground. There were props to be collected, painting and hammering to be done in order to get the stage looking more like a living-dining room. Lines had to be learned, rehearsed and rehearsed again before the big night. The actual performance meant the guys having to wear make-up as well as the girls, quick costume changes, trying not to smear your make-up or mess up your hair, remembering your lines, and trying to suppress giggles at funny moments.

Stage manager Teresa Dalenberg, commented "the cast was very good since many of them were new to a North Side production, I think they did very well."

Essie thinks of her dancing career, while Tom Tryon listens intently to the speaker.

Study Habits As Unique As Person

Study, according to Webster's Dictionary, is defined as an effort to learn by reading or thinking.

The study habits of people are as varied as the people themselves are different.

For some, study time is a set time every evening lasting at least one hour. This is carried out in a special place where it is quiet, there are no telephone calls, all needed material is at their fingertips, with no interruptions.

For others, study is done to the musical accompaniment of their favorite rock group. This may be in a room away from everyone or right in the midst of family life, with phone calls gladly accepted.

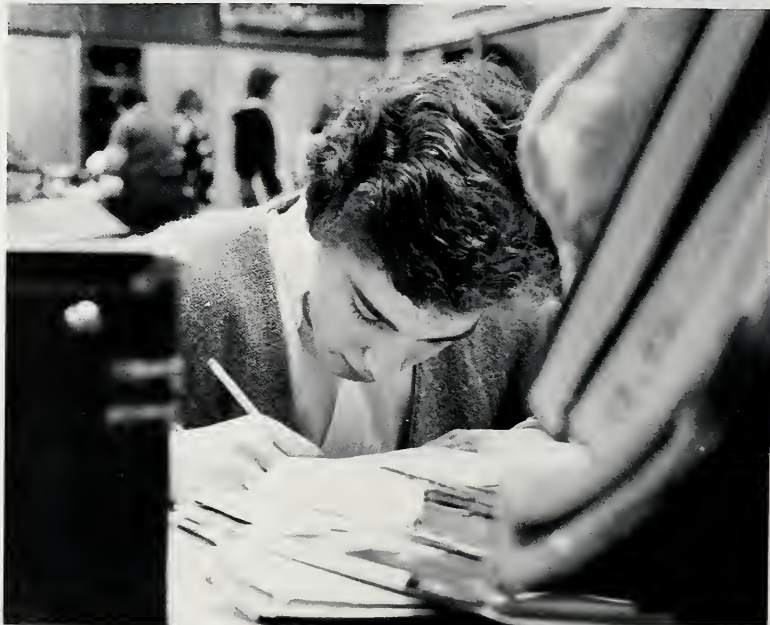

For another group, study time is whenever, however! This may be early in the morning before leaving for school, on the bus going to school, or in their study hall before the class in which the material is needed.

The most important aspect of study would seem to be that we learn that we absorb the facts as they are presented. The method of study would seem to be secondary to the study itself.

Senior Ruth Berger finds an out-of-the-way hall to finish her homework for the day.

NEWSMAKERS

Welday

The 1981-'82 school year saw many triumphs and tragedies. One tragedy which stood out in Fort Wayne was the death of Susan Welday. She was the co-anchorperson on the evening news.

Miss Welday was hospitalized on August 8. She was suffering from an intestinal bacteria. Three operations were performed but were unsuccessful. She died September 26, 1981.

Miss Welday was known for her broadcasts of "Trouble Shooter" and "Wednesday's Child." In each of the broadcasts she was trying to help people. "Trouble Shooter" helped people with any sort of problem. "Wednesday's Child" was developed to give homes to unadopted children.

When Miss Welday died, it was a great shock to the viewing audience. She has definitely left her mark upon our city, one which will not soon be forgotten.

Kansas City

The worst disaster in Kansas City history happened when, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, two out of three skybridges crashed down on couples attending a quiet weekend tea dance, killing at least 110 and sending more than 80 to area hospitals.

Rescue teams, using giant construction cranes as well as their bare hands, removed the final bodies from beneath the tons of concrete and steel debris.

More than 2,000 dancers, hotel staff and casual observers were on the lobby floor of the year-old Hyatt when two of the three skybridges buckled and collapsed.

"This is the worst disaster in Kansas City history," said the weeping Mayor Richard Berkley.

The crash occurred as scores of people, wanting a better look at the dancing, stood on the walkways which stretch along the sides of the hotel's atrium on the second, third, and fourth floors.

Suddenly the walkway on the third floor began to sag and crack apart, sending an estimated 50 people to the second floor walkway.

Sadat

Anwar Sadat, the President of Egypt, was assassinated on October 6, 1981, during a military parade in Cairo, Egypt. A military vehicle broke away from the procession and four or five rebel soldiers threw grenades and opened fire on Sadat, killing him with wounds to the head and chest. Sadat had made peace with Israel, which changed the course of Middle East history.

Reagan

On March 30, 1981, President of the United States, Ronald Reagan was shot in the chest by a lone gunman when he walked to his limousine after addressing a labor meeting at the Washington Hilton Hotel. The White House press secretary, James Brady, and two law-enforcement officers were also hit by the wave of shots. A series of five or six shots rang out as Mr. Reagan left the hotel.

A look of disbelief swept across the President's face when the shots were fired as he raised his arm to wave to the crowd. Nearby, James Brady lay in a puddle of blood. The Washington police arrested a 25-year-old man, John W. Hinkley, Jr. at the scene of the attack.

The President was not too badly shaken up and was released from the hospital after recovery; press secretary James Brady was released from the hospital after many months.

Baseball Strike

The major league baseball strike, which deprived the Nation of its favorite summer sport for almost two months and became the longest walk-out in professional sports history ended early on August 10, 1981, after marathon negotiation sessions. The season proceeded with the Los Angeles Dodgers winning the World Series against the New York Yankees.

Boeing 737

On Wednesday, January 13, 1982, a Boeing 737 with at least 75 passengers on board crashed into the Potomac River bridge, smashing automobiles and sinking into the icy water. More than 70 people, including at least six motorists, were believed killed.

Only nine bodies were recovered as of that night. At least 17 survivors were taken to area hospitals, and there was no indication that there would be any more. Some of those who survived were injured in the crash itself; others suffered the effect of exposure to the frigid river water. Federal safety officials had no immediate idea of what caused the crash — the first fatal crash at National Airport in 31 years and the first commercial crash in the Nation since 1979.

Pope John Paul II

In Vatican City, Rome, a gunman fired several times at Pope John Paul II as he rode through crowds of thousands in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981, and wounded him in the abdomen. Italian policemen in the square apprehended the young man who allegedly shot at the Pope. Pope John Paul II was the first Pole in history to succeed to the throne of St. Peter.

Freeze

"Old Man Winter" really let the U.S. have it. The Nation experienced one of the worst winter storms ever. In Florida, the temperatures reached a record low, causing damage to citrus fruits.

In Fort Wayne, the freeze caused the rivers to get blocked up and water problems to many buildings.

Winter Brought Icy Grip, Cold Feet, Family Fun

When winter comes, can spring be far behind?

A great number of people were asking themselves this question in our fair city as an arctic air mass moved across the Midwest forcing temperatures to their lowest points since 1945.

The days of Jan. 8 thru Jan. 12, 1982, brought actual temperature readings of below zero into the teens. The wind chill factor at Baer Field reached -69! Our schools were closed for two days, a number of businesses weren't in operation, water pipes froze and broke, cars refused to start, and our police department was busy with "fender benders." Tragedy accompanied the cold as about 200 deaths were directly attributed to the cold weather.

There was a feeling of family as people were forced to stay home and work together to keep warm and to get to know each other. "Long johns" were the fashion, and a lot of closets got straightened out as people used the days to their advantage.

Though classes did not meet, another kind of learning was taking place — one we will remember to tell our grandchildren about.

The thermometer was even cold on one bitter winter day.

Joel Brecount, sophomore, walks out of the arctic cold of an icy January day to the comforting warmth of North.

Extremely cold temperatures caused ice to block the many rivers in Fort Wayne.

Health Fair Was Huge Success

North Side High School was selected to host the first Health Fair ever held in Fort Wayne.

Mayor Win Moses opened the Fair in a ceremony consisting of speeches and a ribbon-cutting ceremony. The Health Fair, sponsored by WPTA Channel 21, was held in November in our gymnasium.

Registered nurses from our community staffed some booths, each featuring a different health test. Members of the Student Council assisted at the booths. There were stations in the gym for blood pressure checks, percent of fat tests, nutrition, anemia tests, and glaucoma tests for the faculty. The par-course at the IU-PU campus was opened to teams of five people each, several of our students took advantage of the event to have their heart rate monitored. Films about detecting cancer were shown to all the students.

The math classes tabulated the results of the testing and the Health Fair was termed a huge success.

Seniors Jane Grandos, Cheryl Ayers, Terry Lovejoy, and Kevin Colcord attacked the Parcourse.

Moment of Joy Worth the Hurts

I think I'll try out for the team. How hard can it be?

Well, I'll tell you! Defeat, practice, pain and joy; they go along with being on the team. Diets, long hours in the weight room, and preparing for the big night when I get to be one of the starters or be the first on the beam.

The coach will yell at me, but he'll tell me that I'm improving. He'll tell me to work on my backhand or practice that tumble until he thinks it's right.

Then there's always coping with victory and defeat. There is congratulating the teammate that made the winning touchdown when I didn't get to play.

"Why can't you keep up your grades?" ask my parents. "Why can't you go out with me tonight?" asks my boyfriend or girlfriend.

"I'm trying the best that I can, and I will go on and win all of the battles that come my way," I say.

If I can cope with all of the ups and downs of being an athlete, then I am the best I can be.

Track Camp Pays Off for Members

Serious conditioning for the upcoming cross country season started in August at Pokagon. For a week, all the team did was eat, sleep, and run. "Camp was a lot of hard work, but it was worth it!" stated Tom Hattery, one of the few seniors on the team.

The team's hard work at camp paid off. The varsity ended their season with a respectful record of 6-4 and the reserves with an exceptional 9-1. Early in the season, the team placed 6th in the Northrop Invitational. The sophomore team placed first in the Illiana meet. The team placed 4th in sectionals and therefore qualified for the regional meet, in which they placed 8th.

"I was pleased with the team, being so young," commented coach Ken Miller, "They worked hard at it."

Co-captains Jack Stucky and Tom Olinger led the team to a season of which they can be proud.

Trent Williams keeps his stride to finish the race. He was named "most valuable" on the team.

Sophomore Randy Jackson runs his daily course to prepare him for the big meet.

Girls' Team New At North Side

The formation of a girls' cross country team was new at North. The five girls who represented the school did a good job of letting themselves be known.

They ended their season with a record of 5 wins and 3 losses, a very respectable record. The highlight of the season was placing fifth in the SAC meet.

Coach Carl Moser was very happy with the teams performance. "They did a fine job," he commented. Because the team's members are all sophomores and juniors, next year they will come back the 1982-83 season an even better one.

Junior Joe Beineke puts fourth all his effort to make it to the end of practice.

Tennis Team Record 1-9

The tennis team, consisting of fifteen players, will be losing only two seniors, Bill Noel, honorary captain, and Kenneth Keller. Even with the loss of these players "We're still a young team; we'll have the benefit of experience," said Coach Myron Henderson.

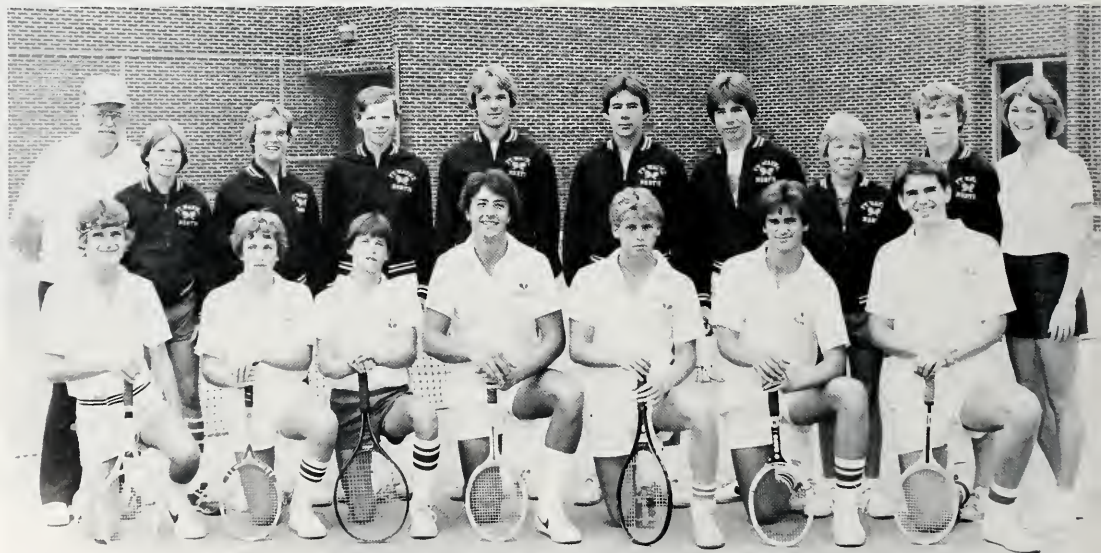

Kenneth Keller may be leaving but he is taking with him the Key Club Award that is presented to the most valuable player. Sophomores Denny Ankenbruck and David Walters captured the year's most improved player award. The mental attitude award was also given to Denny Ankenbruck.

"After our third match we began to slow down too much," said Henderson. "The year was better than it looked on the record."

Denny Ankenbruck and David Walters won six games and lost one in the doubles competition.

The varsity football team finished with four wins and six losses. The reserve team completed the season with two wins and six losses. "We lost a lot of close games," said Coach Doerffler.

Kevin Bazile, junior, gained the most yards for the season, running 583 yards. Sophomore Jeff Reese made the most interceptions, with a total of three. Greg Richards, junior, and Beach Harmon, sophomore, kicked the most yards during the season.

"Overall I think we'll be a lot better next year," said Doerffler. "Maybe we just had bad luck," he added.

Most valuable player was Tony Davis, senior. Along with the M.V.P. award came the best offensive lineman, which went to Chris Warga. The best defensive lineman was Lou Morken. Best offensive back was John Chapman. Best Defensive back was Stuart Cox. Matt Baily was named the most improved player.

Cheerleading; Fun or work

Cheerleading is it a sport or is it a pastime? Many people disagree on what it is. Cheerleading started with boys doing the cheering, but the girls eventually got in on the act.

Sophomore Nannette Dullaghan stated that before she got into cheerleading "I didn't really know or care about sports."

If it could be summed up in a few words, it's hard. You have to get up for early morning, practice, and stay late evenings after school. During the coldest part of the year you have to wear your lollypops. And unless a big crowd doesn't bother you, it is necessary to get up in front of the whole school for a pep session.

But cheerleading has its good points too. If you are a cheerleader, you are special; you stand out in a crowd.

Can it be possible for anyone to be a cheerleader? Well, the opinions vary on that subject. Some say that only the popular ones make it, but others say that you just have to be good. No matter what the reason, you've got to have nerves of steel.

It may be tough to be a cheerleader, but when the games have been played, the cheerleaders need at least some of the recognition. Without them there, who would lead the team on to victory? There is just no saying that we don't need the "ultra terrific cheerleader."

Defensive Team Is Successful

With only four returning varsity players, the volleyball team surprised Ry Taliaferro and other volleyball fans by finishing in second place in the S.A.C. with a record of 7-1, and with a 12-1 record in all non-conference matches.

"The key to the team was defense and quickness," commented Taliaferro. "I felt that our offense improved extremely throughout the season."

Laura Gerardot and Carolyn Trier were named to the All-S.A.C. team. Alyson Goermer was picked for the all-S.A.C. second team. Trier was also picked for the all-area team and Gerardot was named for the second team.

Setter and defensive player Alyson Goermer received the most valuable player award. Carolyn Trier was named the best all-around player.

Freshman Team Finished 7-0

The freshmen football team finished their season with seven wins and no losses. Coach Larry Shelton said that their toughest game was against Elmhurst. "They had good speed and quickness; their size was a big factor, too." The team rose to the occasion and matched up with Elmhurst's speed and quickness. They then went on to win the game. Freshman Robbie Trowbridge hoped that next year will be as good as the '81 season has been.

Freshman Girls Show Hustle

"They were an enthusiastic, hustling group of young women," said Coach Rod Taliaferro. They had a record of 5 wins and 2 losses. Who are they? The freshmen girls' volleyball team.

Even though they had a great record, they weren't quite as strong as last year's team. They were a smaller team, not smaller girls, but not quite as many girls.

There were four most valuable players, Tammy Parker, Lori Yovan, Katie Hosier, and Angie Baughman. Lori Yovan commented that, "We really learned a lot and proved it at the end of the year."

Even with a smaller team, they ended up to be an outstanding group of young women.

Frosh Girls Drill on Fundamentals

Although they weren't blessed with overflowing, enthusiastic crowds, the girls' freshman basketball team, led by Coach Tim Witte, finished their season with six wins and four losses.

The team's goal was just to develop good, sound fundamental skills. Their leading scorer was Angie Baughman.

Coach Witte commented, "They were an exceptional group to work with, considering that many of them hadn't had much experience."

Frosh Team has Fine 6-4 Record

The freshman boys' basketball team had a good season with four wins and six losses. Coach Larry Shelton said that the team didn't have any outstanding players, but a number of the freshmen improved throughout the season, such as Jerry Mason and Mancini William.

"It was a learning experience for me and a learning experience for the kids," stated Coach Shelton. Two players moved up to the sophomore team, Bill Miller and Britt Scott.

Intramurals Go Beyond Varsity

Students who didn't participate on varsity teams had the opportunity to compete in intramurals. The different sports offered were swimming, basketball, soccer, volleyball, and floor hockey. Most activities took place before school, but some, such as swimming, took place after school.

Although play was not as professional as the varsity sports, it was just as competitive, claimed Ry Taliaferro. Not only did students play, but teachers did too. "Approximately 200 people participated in intramurals," commented Taliaferro.

Seniors Weigh Hockey Season

The Hockey Club, sponsored by Mr. George McGowan, enjoyed a winning season. The team consisted of four seniors and a supportive group of underclassmen. Home games were played on Wednesdays and Thursdays at the Memorial Coliseum. When asked to sum up the season, Senior Matt Winebrenner replied, "It was a good year, fan support was okay, and there will be a strong underclass team left for next year. Finally, the pride of the team, the thing that really makes a team, was great." John Bloom was asked to comment on his expectations for the team at state. He said, "We have a good chance of achieving the same, if not better, than last year.

'Fitness' Leads To Racquetball

Racquetball, one of America's favorite "fitness" pastimes, was enjoyed by Northsiders every Thursday at 3 for about $3 every time they went. Each member of the Racquetball Club got a chance to play the other members and "move up the ladder," and then a tournament was held to see who would fill the top spot. Mr. Ted Crum, club sponsor, enjoyed working with the club and hopes that in the next year even more people would join in to share in the fun.

Girls' Team Finishes 12-2

This was a year to remember in the field of gymnastics. North's girl gymnasts destroyed many old records, including breaking the old optional team record of 96.4 by a score of 102.50. The varsity team finished second in the SAC with a record of 12-2, and the intermediate with a record of 10-3.

The team was made up of 15 students, two of whom were foreign exchange students, and three coaches.

Many team members went to the regional competition. These gymnasts are: Nan Didier, Jamie Farrar, Michelle Didier, Kris Fetcher, Jean Eykholt, and Lisa Schlickman. Michelle Didier was also named All-Area.

Coach Morris added, "This year's team has exceeded previous team highs, both on the optional and intermediate levels.

Young Grapplers Gain Experience

"We'll be back next year. Only this time we will be contenders," junior Jack Stucky commented at the close of this year's 1-12 wrestling season. What Stucky said was the sentiment of almost every other wrestler on the team. Junior Tony Knox said that the team could be one of the best in the city and sophomore Rob Hosier agreed with him.

The reason for all their optimism: the number of varsity wrestlers returning. Of 13 possible varsity spots this year, underclassmen accounted for 12 of them. "We were a very young team this year. We had very little experience and that accounts for our record. We had no balance this year between returning veterans and rookies, which is always needed. However, everyone got some experience, and it will help in the next two years," coach Don Hunter said.

Since there were no seniors on the team, leadership had to come from juniors: Stucky, Knox and Kevin Kennedy. "They were an inspiration to us all year," Hosier said.

The team started out a month and a half before the season started conditioning and learning basic moves. The team then started serious practices in early November.

Defensive Team Has Ups-Downs

Second year coach Larry Martin felt that the team's goal was to improve last year's record. The team achieved this with a record of 9-8, not including sectionals.

The season opened with an eighth ranking in state. Unfortunately, the first games of the season were against three of the toughest teams, and the Redskins faced defeat. The team then began to improve and won two of the next three games, played in the semi-finals of the Holiday Tournament, and won the Warsaw Tournament. The rest of the season was up and down for the Redskins. Their defense, execution, and teamwork were excellent; but they had trouble scoring. Because of lack of height, they didn't have many inside shots. Coach Martin commented, "Most of our scoring came from outside shooters, but a team can't depend on 15 and 20 foot shots."

Terri Guy was named to the All-SAC team. Monique Causey received honorable mention.

The reserves, under the coaching of Mark Tipple, had an excellent season. Their final record was 12-1 with their only loss to Bishop Dwenger.

Senior James Hardy led the team in points scored with 487 points. Other scoring leaders were John Smiley and James Winger. Coach By Hey stated, "Great teamwork led to the SAC championship with one of North's quickest teams".

Senior James Hardy was named Player of the Week by the News-Sentinel and Channel 21. James Hardy and John Smiley were named co-captains.

Even though the team suffered defeat during sectionals, it had many great honors, such as winning the SAC championship.

Clubs Change Student Routine

FSA, DEA, Student Council, Peer-Facilitators, were some of the seventeen clubs organized.

Their activities offered many choices. Thespians put on a comedy, which was well done. Student Council had a new idea, a Health Fair, in which Mayor Win Moses participated. Campus Life had some exciting activities such as the ski trip, a New Year's Eve party, a camping trip, plus spirited meetings.

Christine Dennis remarked, "Clubs give students a chance to get out of the same routine, and to go out and have some fun."

Senior Cheryl Ayers listens to her German with headphones.

NHS Inducts New Members

The National Honor Society is one of the highest honors available at North Side. Semester grade point averages were the deciding way for students to get on it. Seniors need a 9.00, juniors a 10.00, and sophomores an 11.00.

The students were honored with a reception in April. Each of the club's 91 members received a certificate recognizing their achievements. Senior members of the Honor Society were given special collars to wear at graduation.

Quill and Scroll Selects Members

The Quill and Scroll was an honorary club. It was a club that only gathers once a year. The members all had one thing in common, journalism.

To qualify, the members had to be seniors who have done extensive work on one of the publications. Members were then honored at senior graduation. Besides being honored at graduation, they received a pin, a membership card, and a subscription to the "Quill and Scroll" magazine.

Klocke Becomes Top Counselor

It came as a "fantastic surprise" to guidance coordinator Delores Klocke that she had been named "Secondary School Counselor of the Year" by the American School Counselors Association.

She was nominated by letters from former students whom she counseled; parents; colleagues; and other professionals. The letters documented her 20 years of achievements such as Peer Counseling, the Executive Intern Program, and serving on boards and committees. In 1982 she served as coordinator for the very successful IPGA convention.

She feels that the most important part of her job is her relationship with people. She helps people grow and learn, showing them alternatives and consequences and letting them decide what to do. "The payoff is in the friendships," says Mrs. Klocke.

Mrs. Klocke is a very positive person who cares about people and who feels good about living.

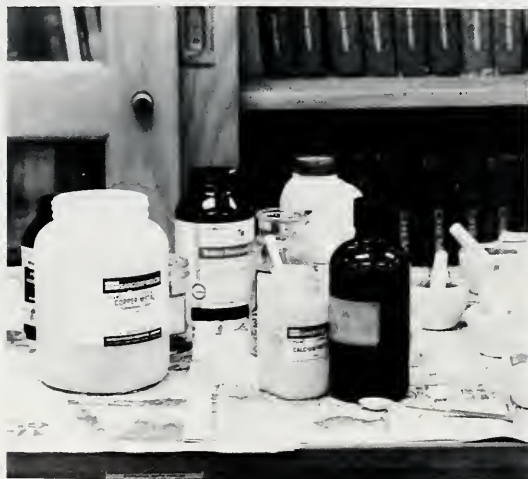

Students Prefer Science Classes

As freshmen, students were required to take biology, but 430 sophomores, juniors, and seniors enjoyed science enough to take more classes on the subject. Whether it was earth science, ecology, chemistry, advanced biology, or physics, students flocked to fill the classes.

In the eight different science classes offered, everything from moles and molecules to organelles and isotopes were studied.

To most Redskins, science meant overcrowded classrooms, seats too close together, and too much lab work. But a lot of students soon found out that science didn't mean just lab work. For Mr. Lewis' chemistry classes it was trying to remember how to convert moles into grams or vice-versa. For Mr. Slavens' advanced biology classes it was trying to decide what to do their research papers on and then trying to get it written by the deadline.

Sophomores Jeff Duly and John Schlagenauf burn a piece of magnesium as an experiment in chemistry.

The chemical table was a common sight to students who were in one of Mr. Lewis' chemistry classes.

Looking deeply interested, Colleen Godfrey and Jeff Dougherty listen as Mr. Lewis explains equations.

Sophomore Charles Green looks as if he's straining to get the correct answer on a spectroscopy lab.

No, Mr. Tipple is not trying to conserve energy; he's merely explaining spectrum analysis to his class.

Senior Kevin Knuth receives help from Mr. Slavens on a difficult question in fifth period advanced biology.

Computers New, Homework Old

Calculators were vitally important in mathematics, a required credit for graduation.

Computers were also part of math and provided another way of learning. When asked why he likes working with computers Mr. Tim Witte replied, "I like having control over a big machine." Computers are located in the 130 hall.

If you walked down the 130 hall, you would see math teachers, Mrs. Laura Daley, Mr. By Hey, Mr. Tim Witte, Mr. Randal Liechty, and many others promoting the 'rithmetic part of high school curriculum.

Putting aside all the homework and the endless numbers of equations to remember, Junior Kathy Smith chuckles, "I still like math."

Juniors Peggy Moser and Glenn Warga laugh about the unfortunate mistakes made on a test.

Mr. Witte "hams it up" during his algebra class.

Social Studies: Not Just the Past

Every Redskin will, at one time, be enrolled in a social studies class. Most are required, such as U.S. history, but some students chose world history and criminology as special interest subjects.

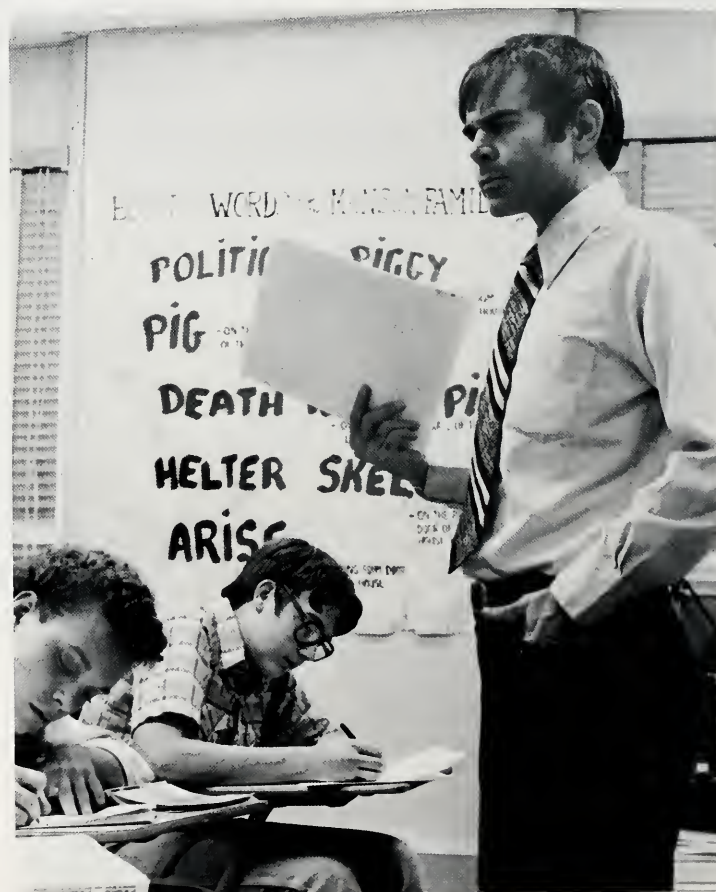

Mr. Dan Heath, who teaches four criminology classes and one U.S. history class, believes that history repeats itself and that by studying it we can gain an insight to the future.

Criminology attracts an especially large number of students. "This course," explains Sophomore Tom Bond, "helps you know about the facts of a case and lets you develop your own opinion about what happened."

The sociology and psychology classes, which are taken during the senior year, give the students information on what factors influence the human mind.

English Classes Enhance Skills

"English! Oh, I hate that class!" says Beth. "It is so boring. All you do is read literature stories which were written who knows how long ago. We also practice writing essays. It is so useless."

English is offered on the curriculum for an educational reason. It reinforces our writing skills. It helps to improve our ability to communicate.

Mrs. Kathy Neuhaus, junior English teacher, says "Reading literature gives modern man a chance to see what ancient man felt and believed. We remember values read in stories of literature.

Even though English is a required course for freshmen through juniors, 207 seniors elected to take a fourth year of English, many of them because they are heading towards college.

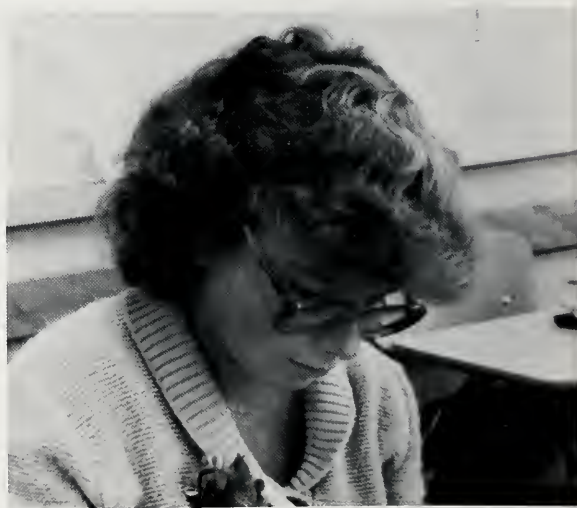

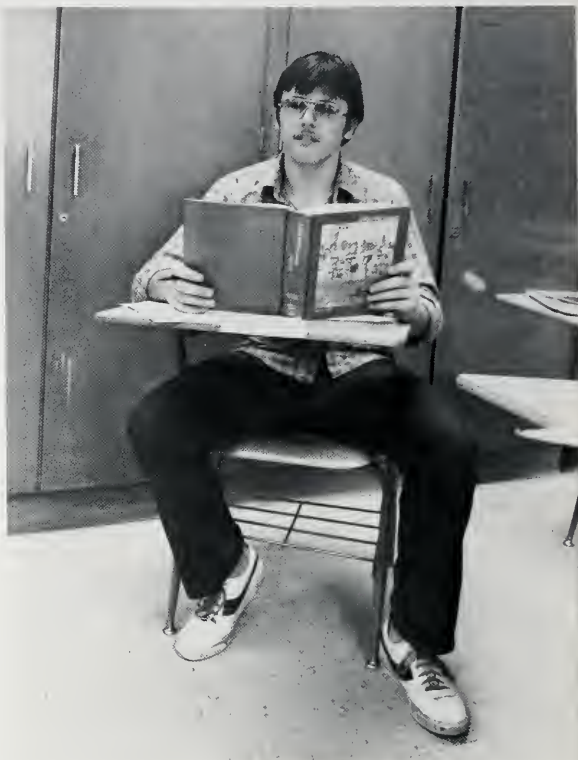

Each English class is different. Some focus on writing skills; others focus on the ability to understand literature and its meaning.

Creative Writing, taught by Mrs. Sue Boesch, is offered for the student who enjoys writing. Students in that class practice unique ways of writing poetry and short stories.

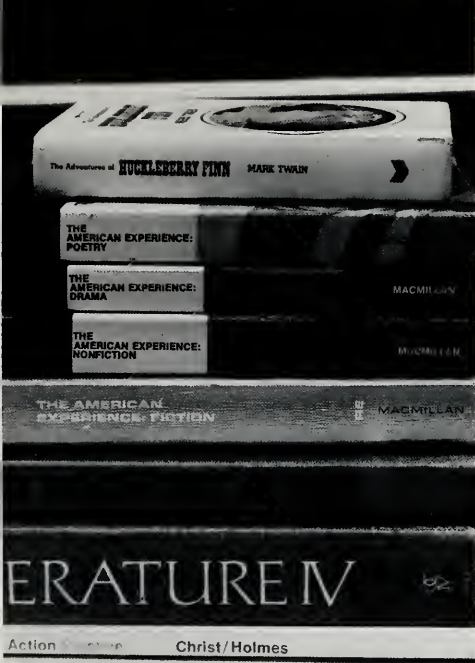

"Teachers try to make classes interesting by getting the students more involved in class by either discussions or special projects. Teachers try to draw parallels between related topics being discussed," says Mrs. Neuhaus.

"English. Now that is a class I can get into," says Beth. "It has so much to offer. Creative Writing really interests me; so I think I'll take that class. English is not that bad."

Junior Leroy Scoles prepares for studying the short story form in Mrs. Neuhaus' English class.

Senior Dorothy Teifert is working very hard on finishing her short stories for creative writing class.

Most students have few books to keep track of, but sophomores in honors English have eight books.

Mrs. Bonnie Outman is busy helping her students on posters they are designing for English class.

Larger Variety Offered a Choice

A large variety of physical education classes was offered to students. A freshman or sophomore could meet their physical education requirements by taking team sports or individual sports. Team sports consisted of flag football, volleyball, soccer, basketball, handball, and hockey. Individual sports consisted of swimming, golf, ping-pong, badminton, archery, and tennis. Archery and tennis are relatively new to the schedule.

Other gym classes offered were advanced P.E. and body building; both contained large enrollments.

A new face was seen in the gyms this year, Mrs. Lee Ann Reed, who taught gym and was the assistant tennis coach. About North Side's gym curriculum she commented, "I like the large variety of team sports played here."

Several body building students improved their skills by using the varied lifting machines in the weight room.

After 33 Years Edwards Retires

Next year there will be a big change in the industrial arts department; Mr. Robert Edwards, a woods teacher for thirty-three years, will be retiring.

Teaching the expanding graphic arts department was Mr. Mark Boynton. Graphic arts students did things like enlarging pictures, photographic printing, contact printing, and helping with the production of the North Side newsletters, the Key, and booster buttons. Senior, Eric Miller commented, "Graphic arts taught me a lot about photography and different ways it can be used."

Other industrial arts classes offered were drafting, power mechanics, electronics, and woods.

Mr. Edwards works with a machine in the woods room.

Senior John Pernell operates a wood lathe in class.

Plastic goggles is one of the safety devices used in class.

Art Adopts a Few New Dimensions

The Art Department tried a new array of classes. Some were split up into semesters, others were a full year.

Ceramics, one of the newer classes offered, was taught by Mr. Bruce Massoth. Students learned how to mold, fire, and paint their ceramic pieces. Fibers class instructed by Mr. Ken Biberstein was also new to the curriculum. Students designed and made stuffed dolls and anything that was fibrous. The dolls ranged from a North Side cheerleader to a green alien.

During October, advanced art students went to Chicago to visit the Chicago Art Museum and had dinner at a variety of restaurants in the Water Tower Place.

Seniors Steve Bodinka and Tracy Neale indulged in excellent food at a French cafe; meanwhile, Junior Shannon Cox attacked a Quarter Pounder at a McDonalds.

Home Ec. Lends Good Experience

Home Economics was not only cooking, it was learning about good nutrition. Home ec. teachers Mrs. Dorothy Coplen and Mrs. Martha Moore both tried to teach students good nutrition along with good cooking habits. Foods I dealt with the basics of cooking and taught students that nutrition is important when cooking. Foods II went beyond the basics of cooking; it dealt with more difficult things such as the Thanksgiving dinner, and a Christmas dinner.

Mrs. Moore also teaches Human Development. Here students learned about dating, marriage, and parenthood.

There was also a clothing class. Clothing I dealt with sewing on buttons and making darts correctly. To pass the class, students needed to make a pair of pants or a skirt, a blouse or shirt, and a macrame project. Clothing II went into more difficult projects. To pass, they needed to make a suit or lined jacket, a dress, and pants.

Susan Stephenson watches Mrs. Moore closely.

Mrs. Coplen glances up quickly during a demonstration.

Senior Vicky MacDonald, Junior Rhonda Miller and Sophomore Lisa Graf busily work on their cooking assignment.

Special Classes Designed to Air

Special education was a program designed to aid the student who had difficulties in learning. In the program, a student could work individually or in a small instructional group.

Some students had trouble in only one or two subject areas, such as math or English; they would attend regular classes most of the day and then go to Special Education for extra help in that particular subject.

Special education teachers, Mrs. Laura Megles-Biesiada, Mr. Robert Horn, Mr. Jack Ribel, Mrs. Dorothy Savio, and Miss Pamela Mitoraj, helped each student work through and understand any problem they may have had. The students with special needs could receive the help he or she required to be successful.

Students Practice Vocational Skills

Subjects that couldn't be taught from books, such as horticulture, data processing, beauty culture, early childhood, metal trades, automotive, and others were taught at the Regional Vocational School, where students could learn while doing.

RVS, a two-year program, was offered to juniors and seniors who planned to use these experiences in getting a job. Many seniors had on-the-job training. Those enrolled in one of the thirteen classes offered earned six credits a year, just as they would in regular school classes; but they also gained a better knowledge of the aspects of their chosen vocation.

Junior Mary Bowers sums this up as, "I like the classes because they teach future careers."

In his constructive crafts class, junior Joe Harker works intently.

Classes Provide Language Skills

"Bonjour," "Guten Tag," "Salve," and "Ola." The students who took a foreign language knew what the words meant. They were the first words taught in either French, German, Latin, or Spanish. Students forget about speaking English and instead put an emphasis on speaking the language they were studying.

Five hundred thirty-five students enrolled in a foreign language. Some did it because they wanted to enrich their vocabulary and cultural skills. Others enrolled because they felt learning another language was interesting and challenging. For any reason, the language department was full of energetic students waiting to learn the ways of other languages.

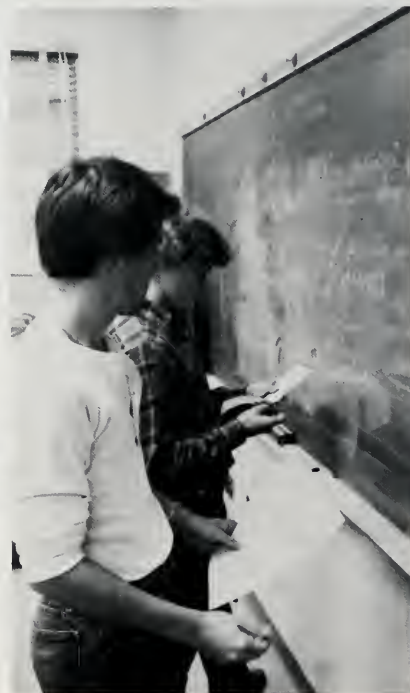

One change to the department was the addition of Mrs. Ofelia Herrero. Junior Kathy Smith commented "I like the way she teaches; it helps her students understand the Spanish language and culture."

AFSers Benefit From Activities

The American Field Service club was sponsored not only for foreign language students but for all students who were interested in other countries and their people. The 35 A.F.S. members provided support for the foreign exchange students and made Redskins aware of the opportunities to become an exchange student. The club was sponsored by all foreign language teachers.

The A.F.S. planned many projects throughout the year: a bake sale, Christmas caroling, and potluck dinners, which were held about once a month. Square dancing, which was begun last year was also continued. Miss Stewart, one of the sponsors, said, "Square dancing gives the foreign exchange students a chance to experience an American dance."

Business Classes Good Experience

Entering the 340 hall, you are bombarded with sounds of keys clicking, bells ringing, and papers rustling.

"What's all this noise?" you ask yourself. Well, it's just students preparing for their careers in business by getting an early start.

Approximately 850 students were enrolled in a business class. Offerings ranged from business law, where students learned about their rights, to accounting, where they added figures, although a few guys insisted on watching the figures instead. There were also two new business classes, sophomore distributive education, taught by Mr. Richard Irving, and employment preparation taught by Mrs. Sandra Macy, which helped students polish their skills for employment such as interviews and applications.

Junior Patty Roeger sums up her feelings about her business class as, "It's good experience for college and future careers."

You may not believe this, but this page of scribbles can actually be read by someone taking shorthand.

DECA Explores Business Field

Junior Distributive Education Clubs of America is a student organization that concentrates on career exploration in the field and concepts of business.

On February 27, Jr. DECA members competed at Northrop in categories ranging from advertising to interviewing. The winners then went on to the state competition in Indianapolis and from there to the nationals in Chicago.

Selling M&M's and other such fundraisers was one way the students raised money for transportation.

Junior DECA consisted of 16 students, and the new DECA class had 21 sophomores. Mr. Richard Irving taught all DECA classes and has been doing so for the past 12 years.

DECA Provides Business Training

Distributive Education Clubs of America is a class offered to students who want to learn more about business. The students can gain experience through on-the-job training or by participating in the annual DECA competitions.

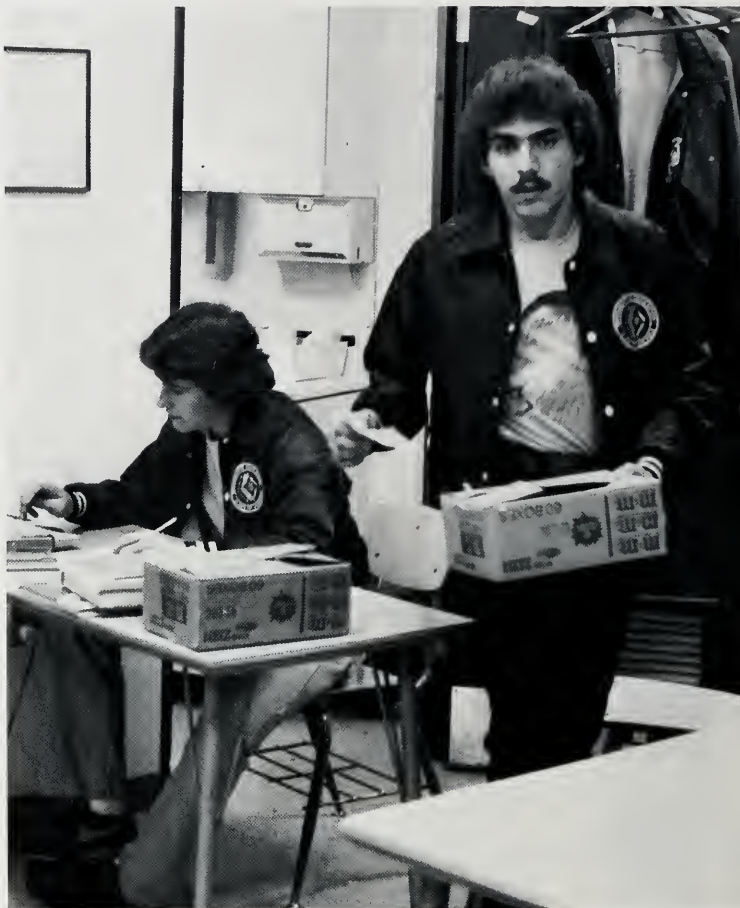

"The students aren't required to participate in the competitions," explained DECA sponsor Richard Irving, but he recommended it highly to his 25 senior members.

The students who participated in the contests first chose a category to compete in. District competition was held at Northrop. If students placed high enough in their category there, they advanced to state and finally nationals.

DECA has proved very successful in preparing for merchandising fields. "It offers students the chance to learn about and participate in the job area of their choice," commented Mr. Irving.

OEA Participants Practice Skills

The members of the Office Education Association were all members of the Cooperative Office Education Class. The group was headed by Mrs. Sandra Macy. The purpose of the class was to prepare students for office occupations. The group met daily, and then went to their various jobs in the community.

Mrs. Macy spent much of her after school time getting better acquainted with the various employers, thus creating a better relationship between the employee and employer. This is a very important aspect if one intends to be successful in the job market. One way they practiced their various clerical skills of typing, filing, and machines were different kinds of on-the-job training. The group raised money for their special activities by the selling of M&M's at school. The club seemed to help the students get a better understanding of the business world, and the community in which we live.

Members Acquire Lifetime Friends

The Future Secretaries Association was a club whose main purpose was to bring to the student a better understanding of the business world through association with experienced professional secretaries, and to stimulate interest in a secretarial career. The club was made up of juniors and seniors who were in advanced shorthand class and expressed an interest in and aptitude for secretarial work. The club met every third Monday during first period. The adviser, Mrs. Irma Johnson, was aided by Mrs. Peggy Hoot, a Tawasi member, which is a chapter of the National Secretaries Association. She was the FSA coordinator, and a member of the Professional Secretaries Association. She helped with the various speakers who visited the class throughout the year. One such speaker was Mrs. Sharon Huff from Kelly Services. She spoke on "How to make a Good First Impression." Mrs. Huff had been the FSA coordinator for North Side for several years. The members of the club participated in an installation ceremony, attended Tawasi dinners, sponsored a booth at the Halloween Party, sold stationary, birthday, get-well, and Christmas cards, calendars, and puzzles to earn money for special projects.

The group also created fellowship. It helped the members become better acquainted, developed lifetime friendships, and it looked good on an application by showing interest and ambition.

Journalism Meets Deadline and Fun

Miss Norma Thiele, journalism teacher, likes working with students because she learns more about them. She says assignments have to be completed by deadline, and these times are hectic. Although they really have to hustle, the students get it finished. Every day there is a new problem.

Students take journalism, Miss Thiele explains, "because it teaches them how to get use information, and to accept responsibility."

Members of journalism classes learn how to make layouts, write copy, and how to work on newspapers and yearbooks. Forty-three persons are enrolled. Others work on publications on an extra curricular basis.

Speech and Drama Enhance Skills

Drama, taught by Mrs. Claryn Meyers, is a class that deals with the basics of acting and performing in front of a large group of people. The students practice in a duo or by themselves. They may read from books with plays in them or use scripts. Mrs. Meyers had her hands full with not only teaching the drama class but with directing the school plays.

Speech was taught by Mr. Gary Schultz. Speech teaches the students how to write and give speeches. They learn how to pronounce words more distinctly. Also the students learn to use the English language correctly. Once a year certain students are picked for the annual speech contest, where they have a chance to go to State in the speech competitions.

Through the drama and speech classes, students learn to express themselves and get used to large audiences.

NFL Competes

The NFL, National Forensic League, is also known as the speech club. Members of the club compete in one of three categories: debate, congress, and solo events. The sectional, regional, and state competitions were held in February.

Mrs. Myers, sponsor, remarked that the club is smaller and less refined since it does not meet daily as it did in previous years. Teresa Dalenburg says of the meetings, "We have a lot of fun and learn a lot."

Thespian Skits Represent Life

"Act well your part; there all the honor lies." This is the appropriate motto for the Thespian dramatic club. The lifetime members attended a performance of Neil Simon's play, "Chapter Two." Presenting the fall play, spring musical, and Halloween and Christmas skits kept the members busy.

Thespian Maelle Bryan says of the bi-monthly meetings, "The meetings are pretty exciting because everyone has interesting ideas for things to do."

Computer Games?

The Computer Club, sponsored by Mr. Randal Leichty, does more than play computer games. During monthly meetings the club "discusses possible projects relating to computers to help faculty members or student activities." Field trips to several businesses were made to learn how computers can be used in everyday life. Members utilized the PWCS and APPLE computers to form a computer dating service and to keep various records. The club is open to anyone with computer experience.

Facilitators Learn Art of Listening

Who are these students known as Peer Facilitators? Sponsor Mrs. De-lore Klocke responded, "caring interested students getting involved." These students are especially trained by Mrs. Klocke to listen to the problems of students and help them find their own solutions. Junior Karen Youngpeter says of Peer Facilitators, "You get to know people well because you can talk confidentially to them."

The Peer Facilitators initiated several new programs, including opening Room 118 during lunch mods as a place for students who want someone to talk to. They also were invited to visit several elementary schools to work with younger kids. The club continued its "Faces in the Crowd" and "Lunch with a Giant" programs.

Mrs. Klocke described the Peer Facilitators by saying, "youth helping youth."

Key Club Helps In School Tasks

"Buy your 'Key' in room 234 before or after school. They're free for $1." This was the recurring cry of the morning announcements. The Key Club did activities other than selling the renowned "Key." Members ushered for the song and dance review called the "Follies" and also planned service activities as they arose.

The president was Theresa Scott, the vice-president was Christine Dennis, the treasurer was Mike Hollander, and the secretary was Mitzi Adams. About 20 members participated in various activities. "The Key Club had a lot of freshmen," stated Christine Dennis, "although there were a variety of all grades." The Key Club "also had an awful lot of girls," Maelle Bryant remarked.

Council Raises School Spirit

The Student Council began planning its events very early. A few weeks before school started, a two day leadership lab was held. It dealt with problem solving, common leadership skills, and goals for the year. The main goal of the council was their image. They worked extremely hard at their various activities. The purpose of the council was to raise school spirit, work with the community, and to improve their own leadership abilities. One of their activities, the annual Halloween Party, was a big success. It gave children a place to go and have fun, without having to spend a great deal of money. Another event, The Health Fair, was sponsored by the Voluntary Service Occupations, Channel 21, and the Student Council. There were different assemblies on self-examination procedures, and venereal disease, in which films and speakers were featured. Also, stress level tests were given to students and teachers. It has been researched and found that teachers are in the category of jobs involved with the most stress. Stress is a major cause of high blood pressure and heart problems. The council also aided the community by a holiday gift giving drive. Throughout the year, Redskins showed that togetherness is the key to success.

Big Afro Club Plans Projects

As one of the larger clubs in the school, the Afro American club, has prospered into a major after-school activity. Under the leadership of Mr. Alvin Harris, the group learned to understand different types of people. Projects, such as dances and lunches, were arranged to promote involvement in the club.

Ski Trip Great In Campus Life

"Campus Life has many enthusiastic students from North," stated Miss Vicki Ottoson, representative for North Side. Campus Life members went to Northern Michigan for the ever-popular ski trip, open on a first come basis. Campus Life also went to Disney World in Florida. Another activity was the camping trip to Minnesota. "We were living with the bears," was Steve Clough, area representative's description of the excursion.

Campus Life is a world-wide organization that is split up into small districts. This organization started its third year of existence at North. The format was changed from meeting at different students' houses to meeting for breakfast at the Crescent Avenue Methodist Church every other week.

Time, Patience, And Practice . . .

The music department could boast of great performing talents. The fall, winter, and spring concerts were very well received, with larger audiences than last year.

Car Club Helps Other Vehicles

The Redliners Car Club, which began as a common interest among friends, has emerged as one of North Side's leading clubs. Their many activities included Road Rallys, poker runs, and entering the Fort Wayne Rod and Custom Show, in which they received first place. The Redliners have improved the image of a car club by patrolling of the community for other vehicles in trouble. The members were especially active during the harsh winter. They received many commendations for their display of citizenship.

"We'd like to thank Mr. Bill for all the effort he put into the club," said Fred Caesar, club president.

Service Workers Help the School

There is a group of students at North who make the jobs of the administrators easier; they are the service workers. There are three different types of service workers. First, there are the office workers, second, the audio visual workers, and third, the library workers.

The office workers help out by picking up the attendance cards in each class. They also deliver messages to students and teachers.

The a.v. workers help teachers by delivering the equipment needed for class or by running the equipment. Also, they keep track of who has what films or record players and other equipment.

The library workers help by keeping books in order or restoring them. They may also assist in locating books. They even help keep the library clean.

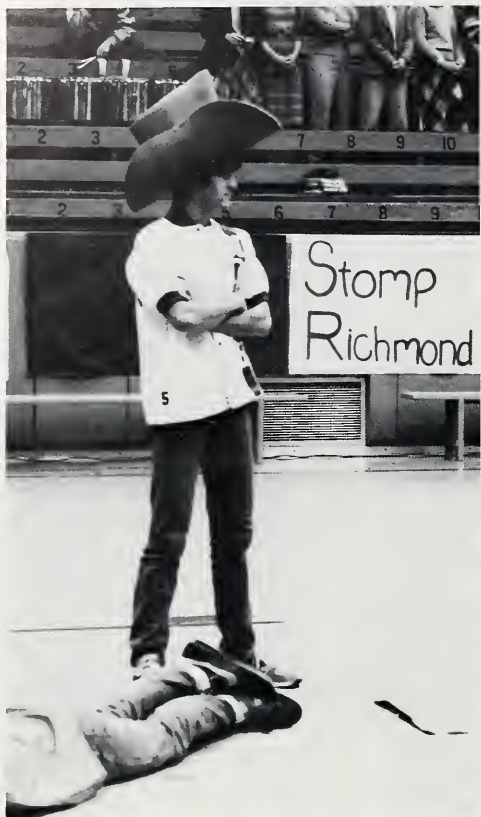

Without the service workers, many odd jobs may not get finished. The workers are definitely an important part of the school.

People

People, the dictionary says, are the persons belonging to a certain place, community, or class: as "the people of North side."

We belonged to all three of those. We had a unity between us brought about by the most important thing we all share; North Side.

"The people are really great," remarks junior Sandy Mossburg, "they're friendly, fun to be with, and have a lot of enthusiasm for the school."

North provided a place for friendships to develop and grow. With one special friend we attended sports events and cheered on the teams, win or lose; we compared notes or helped each other out in that one difficult class, or we griped to a sympathetic ear about that one tyrant teacher.

Over the years when we look back on our days at North, we'll think about all the fun times we had, the laughs we shared, and the people we came to know.

Junior Lisa Taylor and sophomore Todd Bass and Tracy Gilland punk out during spirit week.

Cindy Lauer, sophomore, looks to see what is going on on the other side of the room.

Instructor Lisa Lotter helps make the flag corps precise and perfect.

We're the Class

Seniors were the leaders of the school, with a little help from the Cowskins and the class officers. The senior class officers for the '81-82 school year were Natalie Parish, president; Brenda Sauders, vice-pres.; Nan Didier, sec. treasurer; and Cheryl Ayers, social chairperson.

As they walk through the doors of North Side for the last time, they are taking with them many memories: the first pep session in which they were recognized as seniors, the senior dog-wash and ski trip, Homecomings and Proms, and cold football games, just for a start.

Seniors Ruff It

Seniors Dan Renninger, Tom Hattery, and Curt Lamson are taking an exciting trip. Seven days after graduation they are loading up a truck with backpacking equipment and heading for the Rocky Mountains in Colorado. They will be roughing it in the wilderness for about two weeks, but the truck will be around just in case they change their plans. Each of them paid for his own equipment, and they will share gas and other needed costs. "We talked about it jokingly at first but then decided it would be a lot of fun, so we started planning it," commented Dan Renninger. "My parents think I'm crazy, but they don't really mind my going," stated Tom Hattery. He went on to add, "I hope to gain an even better friendship, a good time, experience, and a beard."

Cameraman Dan

Senior Dan Jones, chief photographer of the Northerner and Legend staffs, has been interested in photography for three years. He became interested as a sophomore, through some friends from another school.

Dan uses his skills for more purposes than just being a school photographer. He also photographs weddings, parties, and has worked for the Journal Gazette. Of course, he also uses his camera and skills for his own personal enjoyment.

Although he thoroughly enjoys his hobby, it does have its drawbacks, Dan admits. It takes up a lot of time, and there is the pressure of deadlines, not to mention the expense. There's also the problem of people who play up to a camera. "I wish I were invisible," he says. "I prefer totally candid shots."

King's Karate

Senior Todd King has been taking karate lessons for two years. "I got interested in karate by watching Bruce Lee movies," he said.

Todd started his practice of karate with three private lessons, then he joined a class. He enjoys karate because it has taught him self-discipline, and has helped him to be more at peace with himself. He is also in better condition physically and is more aware of things mentally.

Todd feels that karate is a wise investment for anyone, women in particular. In these times of increased rape, Todd thinks, "It would be to a woman's psychological advantage to know karate."

Mike and Mark

Seniors Mike Miller and Mark Vela get together once a week with some friends who share their exciting hobby, rock music. Unlike most of us, Mike and Mark don't just listen to their favorite songs; they play them.

In a friend's basement Mark and Mike's band, which is so far unnamed, practices playing such popular music as "Shoot to Thrill," "Nothing Going on in the City," and "Mad Racket." Mark plays lead guitar, while Mike plays rhythm guitar.

Although Mike and Mark play only as a hobby, both say they plan to keep playing after graduation. Both guys have what it takes to go far, so keep your eyes open for them in the future.

Underclassmen Contribute, Too.

"Some day, I want to be a senior." That seems to be the dream of most of the underclassmen, even though they make up the majority of the student body, sports teams, clubs, and other school activities. Some underclassmen feel that they have more spirit, but others feel that they aren't any better than the student body — specifically, the seniors.

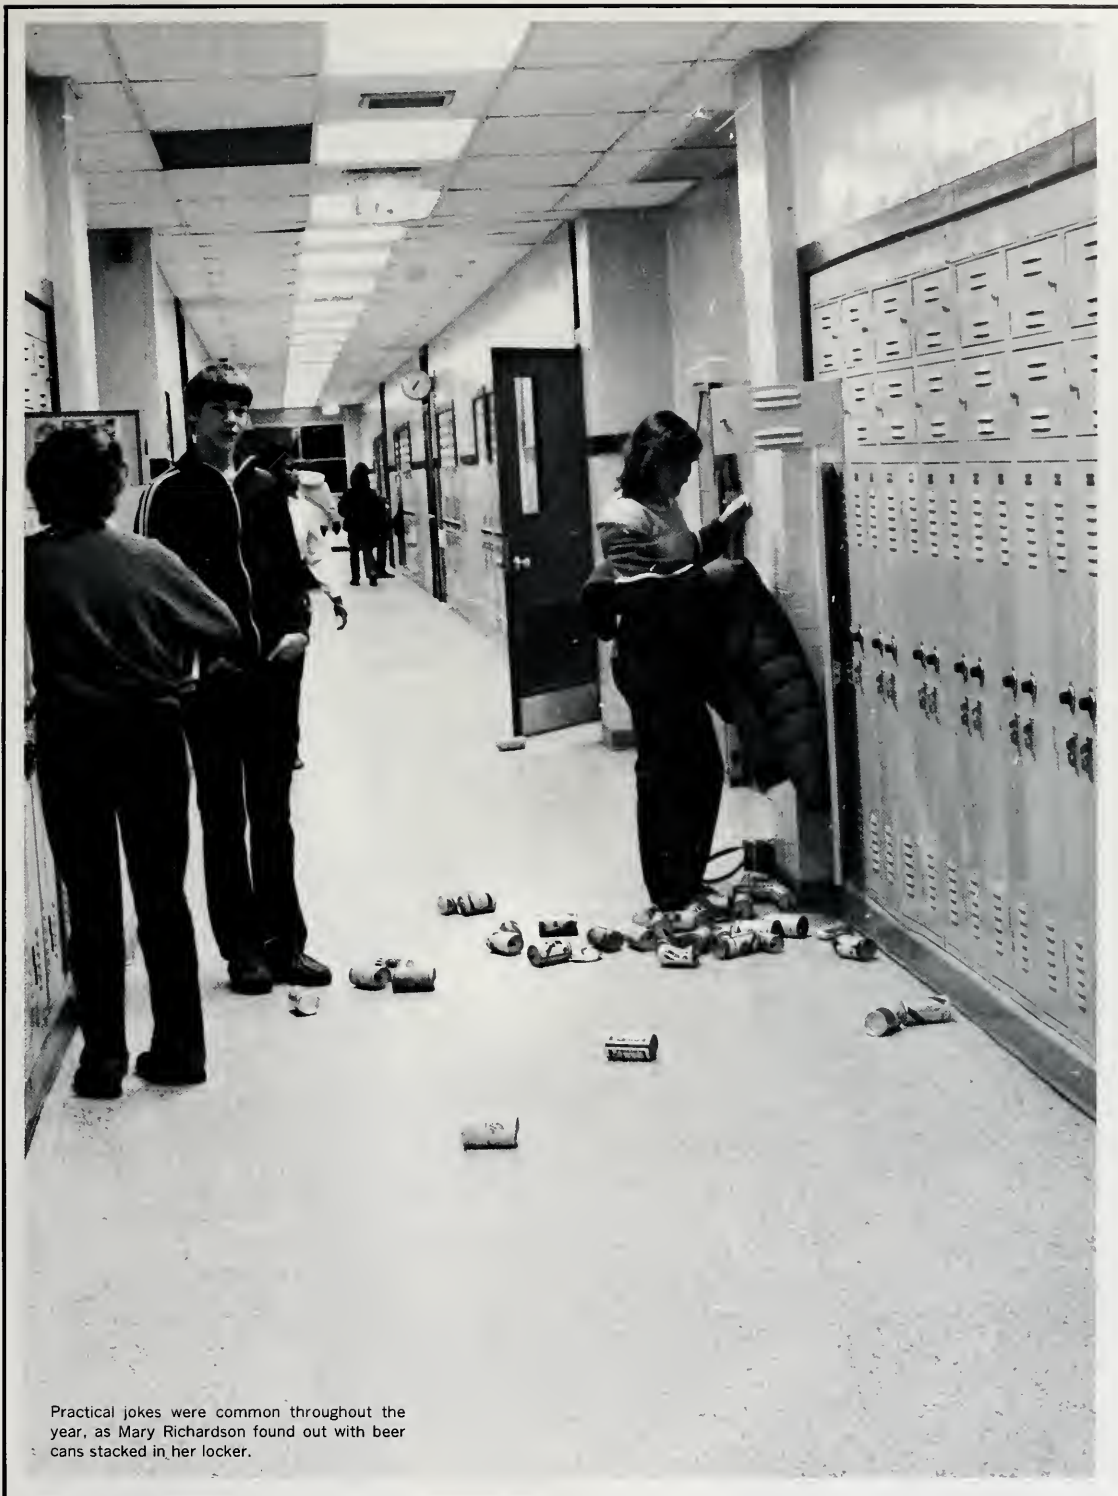

Competition between the classes flourishes: the freshmen think that they are the best, but someone else always contradicts that belief and tries to prove that they are better. In the end, though, they all blend together to become the underclassmen.

Practical jokes were common throughout the year, as Mary Richardson found out with beer cans stacked in her locker.

Juniors . . .

"I think the class spirit has improved 100%," junior Rhonda Overmyer says about the class of '83. Senior Terri Adams adds, "They're full of spirit and enthusiasm."

The junior class has broken out of their shells and made themselves known. They feel that they have an athletic class filled with spirited people. This year the junior girls won the women's football game, and the class as a whole won a lot of the awards for their hall during Homecoming Week.

Junior Stephanie Long feels, "They've matured a lot and they're showing more spirit this year." The overall feelings of the junior class are summed up with one word used by junior Rick Fletcher, "Fantastic!"

Ryan Day . . .

Ryan Day's future is certain. "It will have something to do with computers," Ryan said. Ryan first became interested in computers through his brother. His next step was the purchase of an Apple computer. "I worked all summer to buy it," Ryan commented. His computer duties at school include being a computer tutor, working for the math department, and making up his own programs. "My first program could go on sale this summer and I could make some big money off of it," Ryan said. He ended by stating, "I really enjoy working with computers because they are the future."

Paul Hansen . . .

Paul Hansen is hoping that all his hard work will pay off later when he is pursuing his career as an actor. He has performed in several area-based productions including "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Runaways". Paul also appeared in North Side's "Hello Dolly" last year, but has had little time for other North Side plays because of his other commitments. Paul began in theater in the eighth grade and is still learning. His advice to anyone interested in an acting career: Learn from experience.

Sophomores . . .

They survived their year as North's first freshman, and now they're sophomores; but not sophomoric!

The sophomore class repeated themselves this year on two aspects; the girls again won the Tug-O-War, and the class treasury had another successful year selling oranges.

Though many agree that they're "an average class," sophomore Aric Sabins says, "We're the best class North Side has ever had; we have a lot of spirit," and David Walters adds, "We're a perfect 10!"

Kim Gantt . . .

While most of us are just born to our American citizenship, others like sophomore Kim Gantt, transverse miles and litigation to become citizens of the U.S.

Kim was born in Seoul, Korea. At three-and-a-half years old, she was adopted by an American family.

During first grade, she became a naturalized citizen. She was brought before a judge, who explained to her, her rights and responsibilities as an American.

"Someday I want to know Korea better and visit the orphanage I lived in," Kim notes. "That way maybe I can get to know myself a little better too."

Nan Sauer . . .

Sophomore Nan Sauer's life is a careful blend of athletics, music, and art.

Next to academics, Nan stresses the importance of sports in her life. She enjoys volleyball, basketball, track, softball, baseball, swimming, bicycling, and racquetball.

Nan's musical interests are expressed through the French horn, the trumpet, the piano and the trombone; she has also sung in church and school choirs.

About her art ability, Nan explains, "Ever since I was small, I've liked to doodle." Her art brought her to the school paper as a cartoonist.

"I like the people at North," says Nan, "and I think this is a good school to do the things you like to do."

Frosh Energetic

Without the new, there eventually would be no old. The transitional period after the addition of a freshman class last year is over. The freshmen were accepted into the school with little of the expected trouble.

Some upperclassmen felt rejuvenated by the presence of freshmen. "I think it is refreshing to see the freshmen in the halls; they are so full of energy," Dan Jones, senior said.

Energetic is the adjective used to describe a class that promises to be the leaders in the years to come.

Kim Shippy . . .

"I've always liked horses," declares freshman Kim Shippy. Kim has been a member of the Blue Ridge Equestrian (riding) team for two years. "I hope to get to the Olympics by 1988 or 1992," she says. "What I'm working for is an advanced level of riding and ultimately I hope to be a member of the United States Equestrian Team." After the Olympics she plans to become a master riding instructor. Now, Kim devotes about 25 hours per week riding. However, Kim doesn't mind the work. "I enjoy doing it," she says simply.

The Lydys

President Pam and Vice-President Paula Lydy of the freshman class enjoy being twins because of the many advantages involved, helping each other with homework, confusing their friends on the telephone, and according to the twins, "sometimes switching classes as a joke." They feel that being twins and at the same time president and vice-president is very nice, because if ever a problem arises about the freshman class they know where to find each other. Things that they do together include taking piano lessons since kindergarten. Over all, the twins agree that they really wouldn't want it to be another way.

Administrators Willing to Help

Day after day the administrators were faced with many problems, but they didn't complain. They were always willing to listen to students and help them with a problem, like finding directions, getting a locker unjammed, or even with attendance. The secretaries helped the students and teachers by typing, filling out forms, or relaying messages. The counselors had to cope with discipline problems, class schedules, and college applications. No matter what the job was, whether it was lunch room detail, attendance check, or keeping the school clean and neat, they were always willing to give aid in making North Side a second home for the students.

Teaching Abroad

Mr. Orvil Schlatter spent the last two years not teaching at North Side, but in Africa. He was in Africa because the church Mr. Schlatter belongs to asked him to teach at a missionary school. His stay was to last only one year, but it lasted two years.

The school in which Mr. Schlatter taught was quite small. It has students in grades one through nine. Mr. Schlatter was one of three teachers. He taught grades seven, eight, and nine.

The African school system is different from our own. They have five weeks off for Christmas and five days off to be used for trips. Two trips Mr. Schlatter went on were mountain climbing and barracuda fishing. Mr. Schlatter commented on teaching there by saying, "The students and teachers have a relationship like a family. Also, if I had the chance to teach there again, I would."

Ballet Favorite of Mrs. Outman

Mrs. Bonnie Outman not only teaches freshman English but also dance class. She began teaching the class two years ago. Mrs. Outman enjoys it because "the students are fun, energetic, and hardworking." In dance class Mrs. Outman begins teaching yoga, aerobic, and jazz, and works on through to ballet, tap, and jazzercise. Mrs. Outman's expectations for her dance class are to introduce her students to the different areas of dance.

Mrs. Outman, herself, has been dancing for twenty-five years. She enjoys dancing because "I feel happy when I dance." Mrs. Outman likes to dance to all music. Her favorite dance is the cecchetti ballet. Ballet has been her main sort of dance because "my trainer stressed it the most," says Mrs. Outman.

Mrs. Outman has been in many dance shows since she began dancing. While in the Flint Ballet Theater, Mrs. Outman was in Swan Lake, Giselle, Sleeping Beauty, and Peter and the Wolf. Her favorite part was in Giselle.

"Just a Hobby"

Besides being a business teacher, Mr. Keith Fisher has another job: horse racing. During the months of May through November, Mr. Fisher devotes some of his time to the training and racing of horses.

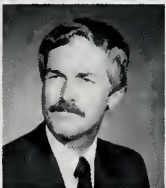

Mr. Fisher, with a friend 15 years ago, first started a harness horse business in which they bought, raced, and sold horses. He now owns and races two standard-bred horses, a trotter and a pacer, which are so called because of the way they race.

Throughout his career as driver and trainer, Mr. Fisher has been in 114 races, and out of these he has won 21, and has come in second in 12 races and third in 17.

Although Mr. Fisher is credited with all these victories, he still considers harness racing "just a hobby."

Popular Course Features Crime

Blood, guns, and organized crime are a few common interests of the students in Mr. Heath's criminology class. It has been offered for five years and is one of the most popular classes offered.

Mr. Heath decided to teach criminology only as an end result to having a three week session in his U.S. History classes. The sessions went over very well, so Mr. Heath asked the school board to offer a class on criminology for a semester. It was put on a one-year trial basis and has been offered ever since.

In the class Mr. Heath hopes to give "an understanding of criminal behavior and crime prevention."

The favorite subjects studied in class are the Manson Family and the Sharon Tate murders. Mr. Heath feels it is popular because of the Hollywood setting, drug cultures, the youthfulness in the killers, and Manson himself. With the topics studied, it is no wonder the class is always full.

Neuhaus Content at North Side

Mrs. Neuhaus has been teaching at North Side for 13 years. She has remained at North so long because she feels the school's philosophy of "teaching the subject matter, while teaching the entire student" is the best. In other words, she can teach English while concentrating on a student's individual needs along with the subject matter being taught. Also, Mrs. Neuhaus says, "The students seem more real at North Side than at other schools, meaning they don't put on an act or front."

Through her years at North, one memory will remain unforgettable, or as Mrs. Neuhaus puts it "unfrogettable." This is her collection of frogs. It all started when a student gave Mrs. Neuhaus a frog poster, which was very ugly. Mrs. Neuhaus didn't like it, so she hid it. Since then that student has been placing frogs in Mrs. Neuhaus' room. In the past two years Mrs. Neuhaus has obtained images of frogs which stick on pencils, puzzles of frogs, or squeeze toys in the shape of frogs.

One goal Mrs. Neuhaus would like to achieve in her life is to have the time to do everything she enjoys. One main idea she would like to do is create a manuscript guide for freshmen to carry all through high school. It would give examples of research papers, different writings, and resumés. However, as Mrs. Neuhaus puts it, "There isn't enough time to do everything, but I keep trying."

Mr. Bierbaum does his imitation of the samurai, much to the delight of many Redskins.

Spending Money Reason for Jobs

School may take up a person's time, but many students find the time to have a job. Some of the various occupations that students take on are carry-outs, babysitters, paperboys, bakery workers, and even dietitians.

Each person has his or her own reason for getting a job. They may range from school expenses to just plain old spending money. Junior Tammy Worley's reason for taking on the responsibilities of a job are, "I wanted money for college and of course spending money."

Junior Christine Dennis, however, had a different reason. "I wanted the experience that a job has to offer."

Legend Staff

Through the 1981-82 Legend, it was our hope that we would put together most of the things that made this year special. We did it to the best of our ability, sometimes overcoming obstacles that seemed unconquerable. We worked together on some tough problems, and it made us realize team-work is the only way to get the tough jobs done.

There were some things we couldn't have done without help. Much thanks to all the cooperative students, teachers, and administrators, who made our task a little easier. Most importantly, thanks to Miss Thiele for being there to help us keep things organized and for putting up with all of the "forgetfulness."

FLOOD DEVISTATES . . .
EVACUATIONS . . .
Redskins help save others.

Record snows of January and record cold temperatures of February left a record to be broken for March.

It was March 15, 1982, when a cry went out for help. That cry was answered by over 100 Redskins. Student Council President Terry Lovejoy requested that North Side students help out in the flood emergency.

Once at the City County Building we started the ceaseless job of filling sandbags and distributing them to places where the water threatened to do the most damage. Places like Pemberton Drive, affectionately labeled "the toothpaste dike," and our "dear old North Side High" which stood majestically in the stream!

Not only were the Redskins there lending a helping hand, but when all schools shut down, Bruins, Panthers, Archers, Cadets, and many others were all fighting the common foe — the savage, snake-like monster known as . . . The River.

Day and night, night and day, the fight went on. Thirty thousand volunteers and one million sandbags later, the water started to recede.

We proved what the true meaning of Redskins is — togetherness. Together, we made Fort Wayne, truly, the city saved by children."

The flood certainly had its effects on North Side, upper left; and with water in front of the school, people still insisted on driving through it, page 166, upper right. They had to rebuild the dike less than one block away from North, lower left. Many people had to be evacuated while others had to pump water from the basement, lower right. Sandbags were piled three bags high, but the water kept coming, right, upper left. The teachers, administrators and counselors got together to save the things on the first floor, right, lower left. But children, no matter how drastic the situation, had to play in it, right, lower right.
